

Do ULowell students know all about AIDS?

By Margaret Smith

Ann Peterson of Student Health Services answered student's questions on AIDS and AIDS prevention in a presentation Monday evening in Fox 501.

The presentation, which ran 7:00-8:30, began with a questionnaire passed out to the students who attended. They were asked to name, among other things, their best physical attribute, the person they cared about most, a personal goal. After talking a little about risks and risks reduction, Ms. Peterson then asked how they would feel if they lost each of those things they had listed on the questionnaires, and how they would cope with such devastating losses. "In describing those feelings, it gave them an idea of how it feels to be a person who tests positive for AIDS, or to have someone close who's dying of AIDS," she said.

The students were then divided into small groups, and each was given a particular AIDS-related dilemma to discuss among themselves and solve.

Originally the presentation was supposed to include a film, but students became so involved and take your blood without your written consent, which should accompany tests to the laboratory.

Of course, everyone is aware of AIDS, but do students actually take necessary steps to reduce the risk of contracting or spreading it? Or is ULowell typical of colleges where students are generally indifferent to the dangers? "Many students see it as a problem but do not see themselves as vulnerable. It's one thing to sit back and think about AIDS as someone else's problem but when it's a classmate or relative...then feelings change."

According to Peterson, there are still plenty of one-night stands and other stereotypical on-campus casual sex activity. Many students come to her the next day, but are usually worried about pregnancy or VD.

Although the general assumption is that females are more AIDS-cautious than males, Peterson says this is not always so. At ULowell, for example, a recent test found more boys than girls aware or concerned about AIDS. A similar test at the University of Michigan found the opposite to be true.

asked so many questions that the time ran out. Peterson said, "I've done presentations to classes where there weren't any questions." This time, however, students responded with concern, especially over transmission of the virus, and testing. While most people think of heroin as the prime AIDS transmitting drug, Peterson cautioned that cocaine is not far behind. This is "due to transfer of microscopic blood, to a tear in the nasal passage or mucus membranes." As for testing, she said, "I don't recommend that testing be done except at an alternative testing site, where anonymity is maintained."

Contrary to popular belief, not all AIDS testing guarantees confidentiality. For example, a person who takes out a life insurance policy for more than $100,000 can be tested for AIDS without any confidentiality. "An employee or physician cannot

One thing is certain, and that is, that despite recent media hype over AIDS, college students remain relatively uninformed. "AIDS is being compared to the bubonic plague," Peterson said. There are approximately 48,000 known cases in the U.S., but there could be ten times as many unreported. Many AIDS victims fear being ostracized from their community and friends, or being discriminated against in the job market or worse, in hospitals. Ms. Peterson feels that the more money that is spent on research and education, the better off students and society as a whole will be.

Ann Peterson, who is head of Student Health Services, conducts these presentations on request for classes. Anyone with questions or concerns should contact her at the offices at either North or South campuses.

Thousands may lose Pell Grants

Washington, D.C. (CPS)—Pell Grant checks for millions of students during the 1988-89 school year may get smaller, or vanish entirely, the U.S. Dept. of Education warned colleges around the country.

As many as 53,000 low-income students could lose their Pell Grants while 1.2 million students could get smaller grants next year because the government is about $99 million short in its grant budget, the administration warned.

In a Feb. 1 "Dear Colleague" letter to campuses, Education Dept. officials blamed Congress for the shortfall, saying it raised the maximum Pell Grant to $2,200 for 1988 without appropriating enough money to give students that much more.

To solve the problem, the department said it will either shave $31 off every Pell Grant recipient's check next year, or cut as much as $400 from "least needy" students so the "most needy" students could get the full $2,200.

The letter warned the department was giving Congress until April 30 to come up with more money, or it would start cutting "least needy" students off the Pell Grant rolls for next year.

"They're telling us that if we don't do something, they'll do something harmful," complained

Spaghetti Supper

Our next spaghetti supper will be held on Wednesday, February 24 at 5:30 p.m. at the Catholic Center. We are located on the corner of the VFW Highway and Mt. Hope Street three blocks down from University Avenue.

Our spaghetti suppers are open to all, and we encourage you to call early and reserve a place for you and your friends. Our menu includes spaghetti and meat sauce, salad, bread, desserts and beverages.

For those of you who are interested in groups, following the spaghetti supper we will be starting a discussion group on Scott Peck's book The Road Less Traveled. If this sparks your interest, contact Pat at the Catholic Center 454-0151 or 452-5000 ext. 2464 on Monday and Tuesday for more information.

CLUBS

Premedical Students

There will be a meeting of all students interested in applying to medical and Dental schools this year. The meeting will deal with the applications process and the MCAT/DAT exam. Applications for the MCAT/DAT are in and will be handed out at this time. Suggestions for studying for these very important exams will be discussed. Also to be discussed, will be the procedures to be followed in applying to medical/dental school. It is very important to attend this meeting if you are applying to medical or dental schools this year. The meeting will be in Olsen 512A at 4:00 p.m. on February 29th.

Budget requests for the '88-'89 academic year are due April 1, 1988. To assist you in budget preparation the Student government and the Student activities office will be holding budget preparation workshops on March 7, in Fox 501 at 3:30 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. and on March 12 in the South SUB room 221 at 12:00 noon.

The treasurers of each club are required to attend one of these workshops for their applications to be considered for next year.

Sailing Club

The ULowell Sailing Club is once again in existence. Those who know how to sail, and those who don't are welcome. We have several boats for use in the spring and fall. Join us next semester for new and exciting activities. For more info send a note to Stuart Hall Box 5923.

Student Leaders

Do you need help with getting your organization moving? Does it seem like you are doing all the work all the time? Do you know what resources are available to help you plan events?

If these problems sound familiar, mark your calendar and plan on attending the P.A.C.E. Leadership Series, Mondays 3:30 at 5:00 P.M. in Fox 501.

They are as follows: February 21-Motivation and Campus Resources, February 29-Recruitment and Retention of Members, March 7-Goal Setting for Student Organizations, March 21-Publicity and Fund Raising, March 28: Public Speaking for Student Leaders.

The Leadership Series is sponsored by P.A.C.E. and the Office of Student Activities.

SAM

We hope that all of our available members were able to make it to the club photo for the yearbook yesterday. We apologize to all who were unable to attend as it was the only day left to hold the photo taking. On the brighter side, we will be having elections for next year's officers on Wednesday March 2, 1988. Anyone who is interested in running for these positions should prepare a speech of intention to run for President, Vice President, Treasurer or Secretary for the '88 to '89 school year.

Weekend Warriors Inc.

Volunteers needed to form first collegiate paintball team. Competitions, camaraderie and cash possibilities are involved. Travel to exciting and domestic lands, meet interesting and exotic people, and shoot them. The adult version of "Capture the Flag" awaits. U.S. Service Pers. (Reservists, National Guardsmen) or those who "wannabe" are welcome. Contact Tim: North Campus Box 1573 or phone 452-8123 (a.m. in room #420). Anyone welcome, my gunsight does not discriminate.

Society of Plastics Engineers', (SPE), wants new members. Join now. Meetings are on Thursdays at 12:30 in Ball 203.

A.A. Meeting

The "Back to Basics" group of Alcoholics Anonymous meets every Thursday 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. in Fox 604. This meeting is a closed "Big Book" meeting. A "Big Book" meeting is the study of the book, ALCOHOLICS ANONYMOUS, the basic text of recovery for alcoholics.

Tales of Terror

A collection of horror stories written by students in Prof. David Landman's course 42.217 The Horror Story of the 19th and 20th Centuries from last semester has been bound and is on reserve at the O'Leary Library.

Need a place for quiet study?

At the beginning of the Fall semester, with the cooperation of students who study at the North Campus Lydon Library, the third floor was designated a QUIET FLOOR. Furniture was rearranged and flyers were distributed to encourage a quiet atmosphere. As a result, there were far fewer complaints of noise and lack of consideration, and many students expressed appreciation.

Once again, this semester the Library asks students to use the third floor only for quiet, individual study. Until the building expansion is completed, the Library will at times be very crowded, so we ask for your patience and support.

Adult survivors of abuse

The support group for adult survivors of abuse will be holding a meeting on Wednesday, March 2, 1988, from 1:00 p.m. to 2:00 p.m., in Fox Hall (North Campus), Room 608B. For more information, please call the office of the Protestant campus minister at 454-0683, or call the Counseling and Career Development Center Office at 452-5000, ext. 2390.

Housing for Summer Conferences & Programs

Any faculty, staff or university related groups wishing to use the residence halls for programs or housing during the summer of 1988 must contact John Hertado at the Office of Continuing Education ext.2221 prior to April 1, 1988. Late requests will not be accommodated.

Test Anxiety Workshops

The Counseling center will be offering two 2-session workshops on controlling test anxiety, including aspects of relaxation and cognitive restructuring. On South Campus (Freshman Center), the sessions will be held on Tuesday February 23rd and Tuesday March 1st, 9-10 a.m. On North Campus (Freshman Center), the sessions will be held on Tuesday March 22nd and Tuesday March 29th, 9:30-10:15 a.m. For more information, contact the Counseling center at extension 2390.

Tough voting test

Recently, 109 U. Arizona students were given a 1962 literacy test Mississippi blacks once had to complete perfectly to vote. The test was issued by the Arizona Black Student Association to show how Jim Crow laws kept blacks disenfranchised. In order to pass, blacks had to answer essay questions about a reprinted passage from the Mississippi constitution with no spelling or content errors. Two students passed.

Gay mag printing ban

U. Iowa will not publish an edition of "Common Lives/Lesbian Lives," a national lesbian culture magazine published by the UI Lesbian Alliance because it contains photos of nude women, even though such a ban may violate Iowa's human rights policy. Iowa's Human Rights Committee says the university's Printing Services violated school policy by not printing the magazine, because it should do so "irrespective of content." The committee is calling for a new printing policy, along with a public apology and compensation for the Lesbian Alliance, which itself is suing UI for revenues lost by the ban.

Interim President Richard Remington plans to uphold the ban until a further investigation is completed.

Tech majors needed

More students need to major in science and engineering, the National Science Foundation warned last month. NSF Director Erich Bloch reports that due to the decreasing numbers of young people in the nation, there will be a shortage of scientists. Oddly, there are more foreign students earning technical degrees, including more than half the engineering doctorates awarded last year. Bloch feels we should attract more women and minorities because, "It is bad policy to depend on a resource we cannot control."

Bad fad courses

U.S. Secretary of Education, William Bennett, as he spoke to the convention of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities last week blasted campuses for approving faculty "trashing of Plato and Shakespeare" in favor of trendy courses that don't do students any good.

When Bennett warned the group that "the serious voices are being drowned out by the trendy," many college presidents were angered because his ideas ran contrary to free expression.

Earth Day effort pumps pollution prevention

MASSPIRG's Earth Day project met its goal of 350 signatures on its petition in support of the Toxics Use Reduction Act. In reaction, the project has upped its goal to 1000.

This local petitioning is part of a state-wide effort to garner the signatures of 10,000 students, faculty, and administrators by

March 4. The petitions will be presented to Governor Dukakis at the Massachusetts State Student Conference on the weekend of March 4-6, in an effort to gain his support for the bill.

The bill now has a 130 cosponsor in the state legislature.

The Toxics Use Reduction Act is designed to make pollution prevention the law for Massachusetts polluters. It will require then to reduce the use of toxics chemicals, thereby reducing the wastes they produce.

Several smart companies such as 3M, are already doing it—replacing toxic substances with non-toxic ones, streamlining their production processes, substituting new equipment for old, reusing and recycling chemicals, and developing new, non-toxic products.

The Toxics Use Reduction Act calls for:

1. STATEWIDE TOXICS INVENTORY

Companies must tell us what toxics they are using and make plans for reducing that use.

2. TOUGH ENFORCEMENT OF ANTI-POLLUTION LAW

Citizens and workers will have the right to monitor business' use of toxics in their communities.

3. PHASE-OUT OF DANGEROUS TOXICS

Chemicals that cause cancer and birth defects will be phased out of use and the sale of toxics will be taxed to discourage usage.

4. MANDATORY REDUCTION OF TOXICS

To the extent that it is economically practical, companies will be required to take reduction actions on the use of toxics.

5. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

The state will help businesses that want to switch to using reduction methods but don't yet have the know-how, by providing technical assistance and information. This includes the creation of Toxics Use Reduction research and information institute at ULowell.

MASSPIRG is a statewide, student-directed public interest group in Massachusetts. It was started to allow students to affect the running of their society and government.

MASSPIRG is run by a student Board of Directors elected from its 30 member schools. Senior Jeff Todd and sophomore Brian Woods currently represent ULowell on the Board.

While MASSPIRG has traditionally worked on environmental and consumer issues it can work on any issue or take any stand the student board mandates. If you have suggestions on issues MASSPIRG should or is working on, write to Jeff Todd or Brian Woods at Box 93, South SIC.

Job offers and salaries rise

Students of the Class of 1988 generally are getting more job offers and higher starting salaries than last year's grads, the College Placement Council (CPC) reported Feb. 12.

In its preliminary assessment of how student job hunting has progressed since September, 1987, the CPC found the stock market crash of October 19 has had virtually no effect on corporate recruiting of new grads, even those with masters of business administration degrees.

Petroleum engineering majors are doing the best, getting average starting salary offers of $33,432, said CPC spokeswoman Dawn Gulick.

The CPC, Northwestern University and Michigan State University all publish forecasts of how many companies will visit campuses to recruit each year.

In their forecasts, released in December, both Northwestern and Michigan State predicted the crash would narrow students' job prospects somewhat as corporations, worried that a recession would follow, said they were cutting their hiring by 5 percent.

The CPC last week said preliminary feedback from placement offices on 153 campuses indicates companies have not scaled down their hiring after all.

In fact, many types of majors say starting salary offers are rising.

Accounting grads, for instance, are getting average starting offers of $23,376, a 7.5 percent increase over the average July, 1987 offer, the CPC reported.

Among the other majors and average starting salary offers reported were: mechanical engineers ($29,100), allied health graduates ($24,048), nursing students ($24,444), banking and finance grads ($22,056), human resources majors ($19,284), hotel and restaurant students ($19,032), advertising majors ($18,576) and journalism grads ($18,624).

Gray Garwood, chief aide of the House Postsecondary Education Subcommittee.

Garwood doubts Congress could meet the deadline -- which the Education Dept. says is necessary because it must establish final Pell Grant payment schedules by April 30 -- and questions the department's numbers.

Congress, depending on a Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimate, budgeted $4.42 billion to give out in Pell Grants for the 1988-89 school year, Garwood said.

But the Education Dept., using different estimates, thinks it'll have to give out $4.5 billion in Pell Grants.

CBO estimates, said Charles Saunders of the American Council on Education, have proven more accurate in the past.

Mrs. California is food for thought, but lacks real bite

Mrs. California by Doris Baizley. Directed by Peter H. Clough. Playing through March 12 at Merrimack Repertory Theatre, Liberty Hall, Lowell MA. Ticket information: 454-6324.

By Barry Holt

If lighthearted satire makes your cake rise then Mrs. California won't let you down.

This tongue-in-cheek satire recollects the dawn of American suburbia when a woman's only role in life was usually browning in the oven at about 5:00 p.m.. The play recreates an actual 1955 televised contest sponsored by a gas company to select the most efficient homemaker in California. Accordingly, the four contestants are judged on tablesetting technique, ironing ability, sewing savvy and cooking cunning as they compete side-by-side in identical kitchenettes.

The material is complemented by the offbeat performances of the four contestants. Mrs. California achieves a zany air as they frantically attempt to out-homemake each other. Armed with favorite family recipes and top-secret sewing stitches they go to war for the honor of the American kitchen. The actresses cleverly portray amusing caricatures of the post WW II idealized homemaker.

Yet the satirical edge to this piece is dulled by the lack of any really pointed barbs. The only voice of dissent is the divorced neighbor of Mrs. Los Angeles, well-played by Maureen Garrett, whose influence causes Mrs. L.A. to stage a minor rebellion which costs her the title. Still, the women remain characteristic wimps—they all portray the same slavish devotion to the ideals that the play is trying to satirize—which does little to spark interest once the theme is uncovered. Although they did manifest individual and entertaining personality quirks, some diversity in their attitudes toward the competition beyond what was given would have added some welcome spice to the message. The ideals that the play holds up to ridicule are still too real for the play to work on nostalgia alone.

Kate Kelly as Mrs. Los Angeles and Maureen Garrett as Babs in Mrs. California by Doris Baizley

Is David Lee Roth a Charles Dickens?

For those who missed it, here is the summary of a talk with Pulitzer Prize-winning composer John Harbison.

Harbison teaches at MIT and splits his remaining time between composing new works and directing the Boston-based group "collage" and the Los Angeles Philharmonic New Music Group. The talk was sponsored by the ULowell Center for the Performing and Visual Arts.

JH: We are not living in a time when the popular arts turn into the higher arts without really trying -- like the movies of the twenties and thirties did, for example, and the theatre songs and pop songs of the twenties to fifties. The music of Bo Diddly and Elvis Presley, with its link to the blues, was saying more than music today. In the 60s, popular music began to be "packaged," but there was still the bleeding-heart liberal thing, so it was still saying something and had some connection with form and clarity. With the 70s and the emphasis on corporate efficiency, music became more uniform. Now it was really non-art, and the trend has only worsened in the 80s. You could project a very pessimistic outlook for the 90s, but I'm going to make a Utopian prediction that rock musicians will become bored with their commercial success. The loudness of music will abate; maybe tunes will reappear and the proportions will once again become concise.

Q: Is classical music dead?

JH: The entire potential musical audience is preoccupied with rock. The students I teach at MIT no longer carry classical music in their ears. Classical music is too complicated and stressful for them because they have been completely taken over by popular music. The musical baton that has been passed from generation to generation is passing over this generation.

Q: Could rock music be a new beginning -- the first step?

JH: Is David Lee Roth analogous to Verdi or Charles Dickens? I asked a friend of mine to put together a tape that surveyed good art rock so I could examine it. Most of the stuff in the survey was dispiriting -- neutral, ephemeral, or bad. It seemed to say something about the differences in the listening habits of today. They now use music as an accompaniment to something else. Maybe my assessment of popular music reflects envy of its cultural centrality and the money it has made.

Q: Did you find any art rock tracks on the tape that you thought were good?

JH: Yes, I found some. There was a group called "Gentle Giant" that came out 5 years ago, but they are longer around. A piece they did called "Proclamation" was as good as anything anyone in the serious music arena could write. I tracked down the lead member of the group, who is now working in administration at a major record company. He told me "Now I'm part of the team that makes it all safe." An interesting comment. The piece is tuneful and the proportions are good. So little of the industry is this ambitious. Most rock doesn't take risks, doesn't present ambiguity or ecstasy. It's just monotony and harmonic poverty.

Q: Were any other tracks good?

JH: There was a piece called "Walking On Sunshine" by Katrina and the Waves. This is good-time music, something rock is capable of. It's a simple piece that really cooks. They're in charge of something and it generates momentum and sheer physicality. But basically rock music doesn't fulfill the emotional, structural longings of classical music. Rock today really reflects more marketing skill than music. Price is equated with value. Power and money are the only measure of success. The issue is not artistic value. We're living in a time when Bruce Springsteen is more loved than Beethoven.

Q: Are any composers of concert music trying to reach rock audiences?

JH: Some are. Concert music faces the sheer loudness of rock music. Some composers feel that by simply increasing loudness they might be able to reach the rock audience. Others look to getting a sound like that in movie theatres -- creating a presence that surrounds the audience. Some serious composers try to find a way to get plugged into the rock energy by establishing a steady pulse to their music -- a drive and a velocity that they think might attract the kind of audience that goes to rock concerts. But remember, rock's level of assault has changed. It's not just sonic, but visual. The images of MTV have sociological effects. People hear with their eyes now because they equate jumping around on stage as being "in to" the music. They look for the theatrical quality of presentation.

Q: Are you saying that in the future there will not be an audience for classical music, as we know it?

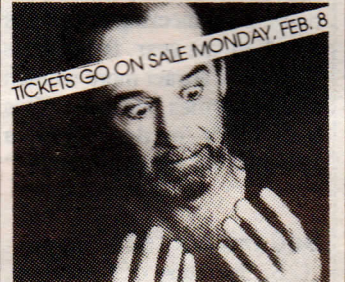

JH: Orchestral audiences are getting older and older and they're not being replaced by younger people. Inward, philosophical issues are the backbone of the concert world, but they are outgunned in today's world; out-produced and out-financed. They are not powerful in America's terms. Now, people hear with ears conditioned by rock. They expect slower, simpler changes. The syntax of richness in classical music is not apparent to ears that are not used to it. I have spent a lot of time as an audience builder for serious music. I've said everything I can say. Now others need to do it.

Dukes of Dixieland do Durgin

Concert Review of The Dukes of Dixieland.

Presented by the ULowell Center for the Performing and Visual Arts (CPA).

By Randy Edgar

The Dukes of Dixieland are known as "the royalty of jazz." Their two hour performance at Durgin Hall last Friday night showed why. The group gave fans at flavorful helping of New Orleans jazz, and in the process, helped the uninitiated discover a new taste.

The six member ensemble played a unique blend of traditional dixieland, pop, and innovative jazz. Selections ranged from the slow, mellow "Me And My Shadow" to the traditional Dixieland favorite, "Slide Frog Slide" to the uptempo Louie Armstrong number, "A Lot Of Living To Do."

The Duke's front line was impressive. Consisting of leader Frank Trapani on trumpet and flugel horn, Harry Waters on trumbone, and Mike Sizer on clarinet and tenor sax, they showed themselves capable of distinctive solos, as well as intricate harmony and interplay. In fact, some of the most enjoyable moments came as all three played in unison.

Trapani was particularly impressive on Louie Armstrong's, "Don't Take Your Love From Me," his solo culminating in a dramatic high note. Waters, the Duke's youngest member, displayed his accomplished feel for the trumbone on a slow Fats Walker tune, effortlessly alternating between delicate and loud passages.

Phamous Lambert, the eldest member, impressed with both his piano playing and vocals, as well as his sense of humor. After one particularly strenuous solo, he turned to the audience and shook his hands in mock fatigue.

Tuba player Danny Rubio and drummer Duke Barker provided a solid rythmn section. They too proved to be gifted soloists.

Throughout the show, Trapani maintained a strong rapport with the audience. Comments such as "just play, Harry," and "we don't know any more songs," created a relaxed atmosphere which contrasted nicely with the group's musical proficiency. This was no more evident than during the last song of the evening. Announced as "everyone's favorite," the Dukes played "When The Saints Go Marching In." True to form, Trapani, Waters, and Sizer paraded through the audience, instruments and all.

From the exhilarating solos to the surprising humor, the Dukes make for a well spent evening. They obviously love New Orleans jazz, a quality which spreads to the audience, regardless of individual appetite.

Twelve Steps of Healing for Adult Children Of Alcoholics

- ✓ Seek appropriate help.
- ✓ Dedicate themselves to the truth.
- ✓ Become choicemakers.
- ✓ Accept responsibility for themselves.
- ✓ Plan a self-care program.
- ✓ Love wisely.
- ✓ Commit themselves.
- ✓ Claim their personal power.
- ✓ Assess relationships.
- ✓ Honor aloneness.
- ✓ Open themselves to serendipity.

Choicemaking: For Co-dependents, Adult Children
by Sharon Wedscheider-Cruse

These are the twelve steps which can enable Adult Children of Alcoholics to richer and fuller life. Come and join us on Thursday, from 12-1 p.m. in the Conference Room next to SIC in the South Campus SUB. Bring your lunch, and help us to grow together. For more information, contact Maureen Wolfenden R.N., Student Health Services 452-5000 ext. 2362, or Pat Davison 454-0151 or the South Campus Office, ext. 2464.

ATTENTION ACoA Meeting

Another ACoA meeting starting on Mondays in the Conference Room adjacent to SIC, South Campus SUB 4:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. We are a group of Adult Children of Alcoholics and we are called to be CHOICEMAKERS. This means that ACoA can strive for health by working on four areas. These four areas: choosing responsibility for ourselves, making relationship choices, making time choices and chosing to 'surrender'. Choicemakers: by Sharon Wedscheider-Cruse. Come and join us on Thursdays from 12-1 p.m. and now on Mondays in the Conference Room-SIC. For more information contact Maureen Wolfenden Student Health Services-South Campus, or Pat Davison 454-0151.

Pershing Rifles

Our weekly letter from the Brotherhood has the main objectives of informing the student body of what's happened and what will happen. First, let us re-establish our primary objective. P/R has been on campus for 25 years, and things have changed, thus our goals have been re-evaluated to accommodate our position today.

We teach the leadership excellence necessary to produce outstanding leaders, in military as well as civilian positions. We are the honor society for all branches of the service, but mostly have emphasis on Army ROTC. Due to the recent increase of AROTC students on the ULowell campus, we are striving to encourage them to support us. Our Pledge program will prove to the entire Army ROTC cadre that we are worthy and should give us complete support and affiliation. Our program is extra knowledge that cannot be taught in the classroom that "edge" that makes an officer perform better and stand out from his peers. Also, it is a position for them to fine-tune their skills and to learn more. The program is a must for that student that is going to basic or advanced training this summer. A program consisting of leadership qualities, in-depth field training exercises, P.F., close order drill and rifle manual will prepare them for anything that they encounter this summer. For the student that has finished the requirements of basic and advances, this is a chance to learn how to better themselves as future officers. This is a challenge to anyone that is willing to take a little responsibility upon themselves, and to strive to better themselves for their future. Pledging will start 29 Feb., so come talk to us at Fox 603 or call our Headquarters at 458-8891.

Highly Motivated,
The Brotherhood Squadron N-12

Personal fulfillment, anyone?

Are you a warm, caring, compassionate person who would really like to make a difference in someone's life? Why not spend a little time building a special friendship with a mentally retarded person? The Mental Health Association of Greater Lowell is looking for advocates to provide social and emotional support for mentally retarded adults in a community setting. Just spending a couple of hours, twice a month, with a client doing everyday things, would be a great benefit for any of our clients. We are also looking for advocates to provide group activities; any talent or interest you might have could be used to enrich the lives of our clients by providing them with new experiences.

If you have a little time to spare and would like to gain personal fulfillment through a special new friendship, please volunteer as an advocate. If you are interested or would like more information, please call: Douglas Prime, Advocacy Coordinator, Mental Health Association of Greater Lowell, 937-0952.

Silver Wings information

The Silver Wings Society is a national organization located on campus with the aim of spreading awareness of the United States Air Force and fostering civilian support for the Air Force. Silver Wings consists of civilian and AFROTC members who are interested in developing leadership and management skills to aid them in the future. Civilian members play major leadership roles in the planning of events and this will assist in the securing of employment with a civilian company upon graduation from college. Our main event this semester is the National Conclave Convention consisting of Silver Wings members and Arnold Air Society members from all parts of the country to be held in Boston this April. Planning of this national event sharpens management skills and provides experience often not encountered while in college. We thank all who supported us during our Valentine Carnation Sale and we welcome anyone interested in our program. Our pledge program begins in March and anyone interested can attend one of our weekly meetings held each Tuesday night at 7:00 p.m.

Guardmen and reservists can graduate with management experience

If you are a member of the Army National Guard or the Army Reserve with two or more years remaining in college, you have an opportunity of obtaining one thing all employers are looking for; actual hands-on management experience while you're still in college. The Army has made this possible through the Army ROTC Simultaneous Membership Program (SMP). The SMP will help offset the rising cost of higher education. College students can earn between $10,000 to $15,000. SMP allows students to be members of the Army National Guard or the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps at the same time.

As an officer trainee the SMP enables you to enroll directly in the Army ROTC advanced program which is the last two years of ROTC. You attend a few hours of ROTC class each week, participate in the required Advanced Camp during the summer for six weeks, and train concurrently with your Guard or Reserve unit.

If you have already completed one or two years of college, you can still enter the program and take advantage of its benefits for your remaining two or three undergraduate years. In the SMP you draw pay from two sources. First, as advanced ROTC cadets, you receive $100 a month for up to 20 months of that program, and more than $600 when you attend the ROTC Advanced Camp. Also, as an officer trainee in your unit you'll receive pay (E-5) for monthly drill attendance and two weeks of Annual summer training.

Cadets who successfully complete the SMP program are commissioned second lieutenants. After commissioning and completion of your undergraduate studies, your military career may continue in the Army National Guard or the Army Reserve part-time, or full-time on active duty in the United States Army. As a second lieutenant you'll be eligible for many other benefits like low-cost life insurance, post exchange privileges, and limited space available travel on military flights.

The initial phase of your officer training will be completed during the year after graduation when you attend an Officer Basic Course. For that 90 day period alone, you'll earn more than $3,400 in additional income.

Look into this rewarding way to earn a commission as well as a degree while you get thousands of dollars to help with your college expenses. But most of all you'll receive valuable leadership and management training both in and out of the classroom. It is an opportunity to benefit yourself and the country you serve and live in. For more information contact the Army ROTC office at Fitchburg State College 342-3190, or stop by Fox Hall, Room 524 at the University of Lowell.

Clubs should register now for a Spring Carnival Booth

The Activities Commission would like all clubs to participate in Spring Carnival. If you did not attend the clubs' meeting on February 8 or you just need more information or some help in deciding what to do come any Monday night to an Activities Commission meeting at 7:00 p.m. in Fox 412. The deadline for booth ideas is February 27, 1988 and the final deadline for a final plan is March 4, 1988.

D). None of the above

Thomas O. Kershaw

Editor

The students of the University of Lowell will bid farewell to two Management professors at the completion of this semester. Professors Charles Hurst and Elle Koss were told this past fall that their services would no longer be required.

The College of Management Science has its interests in mind, but are they the interests of the students? In each case the story seems based on a difference of opinion as to how a college education is to be taught. From a student view the point seems moot.

Tenured faculty will teach as they please. Reactions to student needs come only from a select group of caring educators. Of course individual student needs will vary and catering to each one is impossible. But efforts should be made in a positive direction towards those needs. Political or educational differences between faculty and their administrators have no right to be fought in the classroom on students time and money.

What constitutes an education? Is it the daily reiteration of text to note-taking young minds, so as to be able to answer multiple choice questions? Or is it the exchange of ideas, thoughts and comments of the world which we so strongly wish to learn about? Why is it that folks in the professional world say the first thing to do is forget 85% of what was learned in college?

I have never had the pleasure of attending Prof. Koss's class. But I know that throngs lined up to do so. I have been associated with Prof. Hurst for 4 semesters and we will each be leaving. I wish both of them luck in a program that is more willing to accept the style of those who truly wish to teach.

How Long Should We Wait?

With a State Police investigation into allegations of illegal activities at the Building Authority, President Hogan and the University of Lowell Board of Trustees should ask Donna Tabolski, Executive Director of the Building Authority, to resign. They should then move to disband the Authority altogether as it has outlived its usefulness.

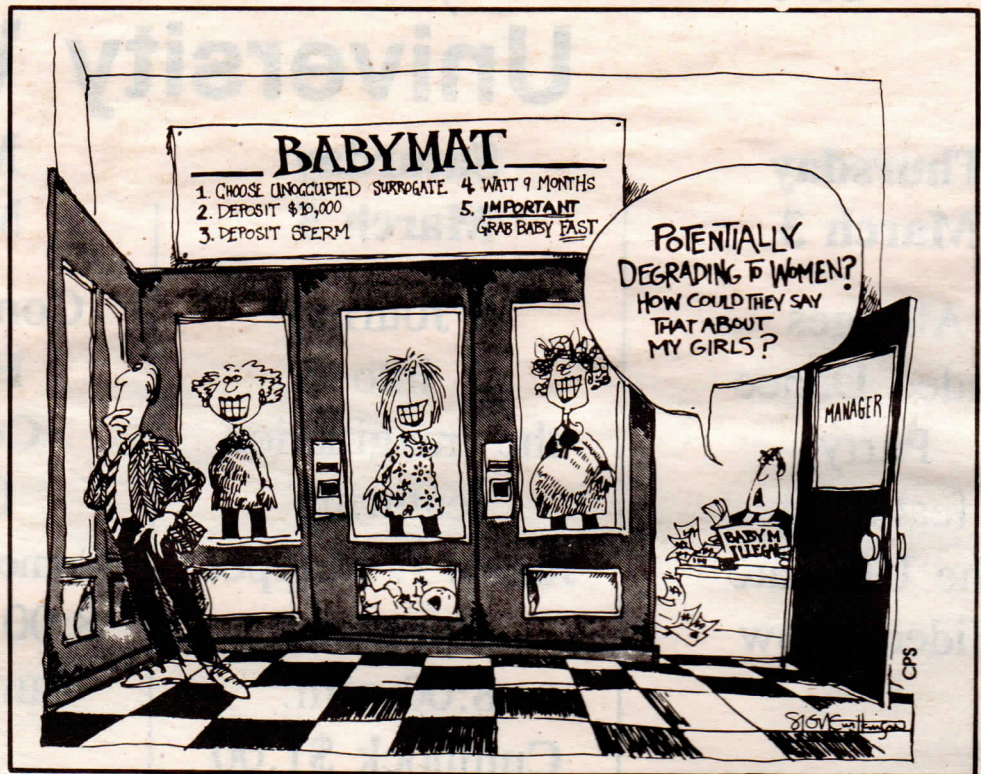

The Authority has allegedly broken laws in establishing or failing to establish contracts with subcontractors. The allegations could implicate the director of the Building Authority, Donna Tabolski.

The Building Authority, apparently mismanaged and possibly involved in several illegal activities, including illegal appointments of Directors and misuse of student funds, has been directed by Ms. Tabolski since the mid-seventies. She began working there as a secretary. Originally established to handle funding of new residence halls on university campuses statewide, all Building Authorities (every large state campus has one) have been outmoded by the DCPO which handles building contracts for all Massachusetts state institutions. Other functions which the BA has handled, like catering contracts, custodial services, staffing, and furniture purchases, can be easily handled by existing University of Lowell departments. For instance, the custodial services are already a mix of state and BA workers, converting them all to state contracts would be simple and logical. Catering contracts, furnishings, and staff, would all be better served by the Office of Residence Life which has a closer relationship and understanding of student needs. Billing for the rooms and meal plans is already done by the University with the money then being transferred to the BA. This useless extra transfer takes time and money and is totally unnecessary.

Until the Building Authority can be officially disbanded, the University should take whatever steps are necessary to discover the truth about the allegations surrounding the Building Authority.

Duplicity is a simple waste of student monies and if it involves corruption as well, the University administration should distance themselves from the problem.

- Edward Taylor Cunnigham

Atomic Powered Apathy

Believe it or not, there was a political protest to be seen in the most apathetic area of an apathetic university two weeks ago. It was on North Campus, at the Media Center of the Lydon Library, where Governor and presidential candidate Michael Dukakis was addressing a group of law enforcement officials. Though I was glad to see someone exercising the First Amendment (which for those of you who do not know is not taught in Aerobics 201), I realized that it must be one of two groups who doggedly follow the Duke in a tiresome pursuit of their unpopular stands. It was either the group that advocates giving gays higher priority in being considered for foster parenthood, or pro-nukers. It was the latter.

I stood passively there, an occasional head shaking my only sign of disagreement with the protesters, and watched as they decided what they planned to do and say when Dukakis came through the door. Only with the impetus from a much less hesitant, much more passionately left-wing classmate did I engage one of the protesters.

"Do you really believe that nuclear power is the answer?" I asked one student. He asked me if I knew anything about nuclear power. That seemed to be the knee-jerk reaction of the pro-nukers; I heard it asked to everyone who questioned their stance. If one does not know the physics involved in the creation of a nuclear bomb, then is one disqualified from commenting on its potential danger? Certainly not, and that is not the case with power plants, either.

I told him that the US gets only about 8% of its power from nuclear power plants. Could we not make up 8% just in conservation measures? Without answering the question, he said that the number in New England is closer to 30%. "Still, there must be alternative energy sources that could be explored," I said. He informed me that those sources are not profitable, and a company needs to make money. I said, "What about the government?" He said that governments need to profit, too. I told him that the USA has run a budget deficit for decades (32 out of the last 35 years to be exact). He ignored that and said that the French have built enough nuclear plants to supply about 60% of their electricity. Of course, he was not aware that this was done under a national energy program instituted by a socialist prime minister, and that socialism is not known for its profitability. So much for the profit argument.

I asked, "What happens when a plant burns itself out and becomes unusable in 40 years? What are you left with?" His answer was classic. "A monolith." Terrific. The French can look forward to a future where their landscape is dotted with dead monoliths.

The Dukakis entourage never came outside but used the tunnel to get to President Hogan's office in Cumnock Hall. The group went there and waited. They got plenty of puzzled looks from people going to the job fair being held there. Those folks were obviously more interested in Digital and Pratt Whitney than Dukakis and politics. Finally, Dukakis and his group came down the stairs from the president's office. The Duke did not even look at the picketers as he whisked by. The protesters did not say a word or make a move. I guess they showed him a thing or two.

If these people had no real feel for the political issue, which I think is obvious, then what was their motive? The gentleman I mentioned before said that they only wanted to teach Dukakis something about nuclear power. Two of the signs carried said "Nuke the Duke" and "Dump the Duke '88" - educational to be sure.

It seems clear to me that they were more interested in getting on television than making a political statement.

I think the deepest reason one of them could honestly come up with would be that their chance of getting a high-paying job at a nuclear plant would decrease if Dukakis were elected president. That is sensible but self-interested. So pro-nukers, please don't tell me you were there to educate anybody, especially if you don't know the right wing from a left hook. Actually, they did teach us something--how not to stage a political protest.

Take The Connector On Spring Break!

We're just so darn busy we won't get the time to hit the sun or the slopes. So do us a favor, take a copy of the Connector with you on Spring Break.

In the past, the Connector has travelled around the world. People from California to China to France all know the best place to get their news: the Connector.

The best photo (B&W preferably) of the Connector on Spring Break will win a prize to be announced at a later date. But you can be sure it'll be as great as the Connector itself.

Announcement

All recognized student organizations are required to fill out Officer Roster Forms each semester with the Office of Student Activities (this replaces the Office of University Life) and the Student Government Association. By being thus registered, the organization is entitled to funding from the Student Activities Fee and use of University facilities for meetings and other activities. Failure to comply may result in loss of these privileges. Forms are available at both North and South Student Information Centers, the Office of University Life, the Office of Student Activities (Fox 409) and the Student Government Association (Fox 411). Officer roster forms should be returned to the Office of Student Activities by February 19, 1988.

Yearbook Club Pictures

The Sojourn Staff is producing the 1988 yearbook. We would appreciate it if you would contact us so we can take your club picture. There are photographers available weekdays after 1:30 p.m. Please have ready at the time scheduled a brief summary of the club's functions and, also, a list of the members in your club, preferably in the order in the picture. We reserve the right to edit anything written. Please give us at least a two-day notice as to when you will be available.

If you would like to submit your own picture, please send to us a 35mm black and white negative.

The last day to submit or to have a picture taken is Tuesday, February 29, 1988. Please contact us at Box 807N. Leave your name and number and we will call back to confirm time.

Quiet day for women

Rev. Imogene Stulken and Pat Davison, Campus Ministers, will conduct the third in a series of prayer for women, to be held on Saturday, March 5, in Preston Hall on West Campus starting at 9:00 a.m. and ending at 3:00 p.m. Lunch and beverages will be provided, and transportation, if needed. For more information contact Imogene at 454-0683, or Pat Davison at 454-0151, 452-5000 x-2464.

The theme, the ego-function of 'thinking', and the element of 'air' or 'wind' will be explored through prayer, song, reflection, sharing and dance. The purpose of the day is to explore and integrate the inner-child-women within us. This series originally started last year is based on the Legend of St. Barbara taken from a book written by Betsy Caprio called the Women Sealed in a Tower.

Let's be honest

Okay, so I'll be honest with you. I can't "prove" that God exists. For me, as a Christian, the existence of God is a presupposition or assumption that I am making. But that doesn't bother me because all of us make assumptions about life. Let me give you a simple example: the Law of Gravity. When you think about it, it is really an assumption. We certainly can't see it, or feel it. Our senses can't detect it. Yet all of us are willing to accept it as fact because the evidence tells us that something, which we call gravity keeps us from flying off into space.

And it is the same with all of life. All of us are building our lives on assumptions. They may be evolutionary or non-evolutionary; supernatural or anti-supernatural or a number of other things. But whatever it is, the basic starting point of our view of life, is always an assumption. And the validity of our starting point depends on the evidence we present to support our presupposition.

Now my starting point or presupposition is this: The God of the Bible. And like any other assumption its validity depends on the evidence I have to support that presupposition. So in the weeks that follow, I'm going to present my evidence to support my assumption. After all is said and done, you may still disagree with me, but I think you will have to agree that it is a supportable presupposition.

Now what is your assumption that you are making about life? Have you ever taken the time to think about it or the evidence to support what you believe? Perhaps you've been told that the Bible isn't true or miracles can't happen. If that is what you honestly believe, then what evidence have you got to support that belief.

If you are concerned about your relationship with God and would like to talk to someone about it, please feel free to contact Campus Ambassadors at SIC Box 111N, or call 667-9529.

It's those damn baseball chicks again. Your car's about to be towed, Dee. Why are they looking at me like I'm Trashed? Gotta go, Dudes! Love, Dee

Spencer for Hire - Let me get up off the bathroom floor, and I'll explain everything. Girlfriend - why you wanna treat me so bad? It's the girls from 17, clear the dance floor! Watch out for the ice, oh never mind. I can see you found it. Is anything on you not fake? Let's go out to your car, I wanna scream. Push it real good. If I come home and find that you were with M.K., I'll kill you! Love ya, roomie! Love, Hawk

Dudes - Thanks for letting me take a shower fully clothed. I'll remember that next time eight of you want to squeeze into the Coltmobile. You know, the one that was about to be towed when you decided it was intelligent to park across the street. So, is it Cape bound? Or are you all gonna let those damn baseball players and hometown boyfriends rule the summer, too? Love, The Original Dude.

Kellie - You're not going to quit know, I'll kill you. Where's my other shoe? Oh, are you supposed to make the bed next morning? It was a really boring night. So, what's your secret, why doesn't he like me? Rent a room. It's those damn baseball chicks again! Dude, how ya doing? Bet this personal was a surprise! You're famous now, you made the Lowell papers. Come visit again soon, dude! Love, Dee

Well, getting a little better....

Britt, Dude! - "It's those damn baseball chicks again!" Do you yell the same? 15 lbs. in 15 min.!! I want to hit you so bad. We're lucky we left at 4:30 - it's gonna be in the 30's and we want to beat the traffic. It's 5:30, of course I'm tired. Searching for my letter in his trash. Well, he was just 17. Should have been me. What the hell are you doing here, no, the better question is, what the hell are you doing here? If you clean one more thing,.... Um, you're a little off target. The only thing he can do is kill me, uh, oh, the golf club! Thank God someone likes spontaneous chicks. Love, Dee

Deana - "I saw him standing there" License and registration please. It's 5:30 in the morning of course I'm tired! Pulsar. Stolen rose. What are you doing here? No, the better question is: What are you doing here?!! What is the name of that beach? Back to the old saying: roomates wanting roomates who are! Maybe we should try going to bed at a reasonable time sometime this month. Radioactive butts. Love ya! Britt

Deana - Midnight munchies. Toilet paper snowfall at 4:30 am. Shmegma in your pocketbook. War stories to Kellie all night long. Brushing your teeth in the hallway. Mickey D run at 11:00pm. Oops! I cut it a little too short! Bitch fight in the middle of the party. If you say that one more time, I'm going to kill you! Cracker spitting in the elevator. Do you yell the same? Find the funnelman. I told you not spew on my shirt. And last but not least, thanks. Britt

Mike - on 14: Hey do you have $5 I can borrow? Don't go get the Vuarnet's in the closet you might lose hard. Thanks for making me putt from the top, I'm never going to forgive you! I hope you're really not a worgin, and that someday I can see if the computer game won't die on us - I think it could be interesting in real life. Next time, leave your pointer or screwdriver in my hands I can make it not hurt as much. Stop being so reserved! Love the aggressive one who sent you to one of my friends.

Colleen - Who's the foxy chick in the red dress? Those little hot dogs were so good. Searching for you barefoot at 1:30am while you take off your nails. Road trip to Sutton, Pittsfield, & Springfield. No, I want the front seat. Teo's hotdogs. for $1. How much farther is it? Why do the little girls carry goldfish in their pockets again???? Peachtree, blah, but I'll drink it. Love, Becky

Deana - Hey dudes! If you get in that car, I'll break both your arms and your legs. Oh, you're too trashed, let me drive. I didn't need that eye anyway. Radioactive butts. I'm not yelling at you! Thanks for trip on the ice. No, I don't want to go to the beach. The tow trucks are on their way, people. Oops, I think you cut off too much. I want my Academy Award, you big mouth!! Calling N.J. at 3:00 am. Love, Becky

Spanky: Wicked nice!!! Tickle and JTR

NoMuTT: Don't forget, you owe me five hours worth of back scratches!!! I'll collect soon. JTR

JTR: What are your hours? The Typesetter

JTR: Can the payment be five hours of anything I choose? NoMuTT

Chatter: See any flying objects lately? Are you "still riding down route 95"?

Tickle, I think we should start a new fashion...shower curtains!!! We'll get NoMuTT back, when he least expects it! JTR

JTR: Wait until he is standing naked in front of the 'fridge with a cucumber and a Perrier... The Typesetter

Jason: Did the Barcardi taste better going down or coming back up?

Jason: It sure didn't look too hot on my front door step... NoMuTT

Jason: was it better the 3rd or 4th time up? Guess who

The Origin of The Typesetter
Part II

Many years ago, before the cataclysmic accident that forever scarred the visage of Victor Von Doom, there was a member of the Connector staff who would frequent the office at odd hours, as the press are wont to do. He was nothing but a mere whelp then. His arrival would herald no great fanfare or dynamic bursts of bliss or dissent from his fellow workers, but this inconsequential being would one day realize his rightful role in the universe. It was late one night, at a time when no others roamed the corridors of Fox, when a freak accident forever joined the man and the computer into the force of nature we known as The Typesetter. Next week, that historical instance. Doom

Lady Chiefs go on the warpath

By E.Z. Smooth

On Feb. 20, E.Z. just happened to see a few of the Lady Chiefs in Costello Gym, just before they left for New Haven, CT. to play Southern Conn. State at Pelz Gym. The Lady Chiefs, still in their street clothes, looked ready to play and win!! However the Lady Owls boast a 7-2 all-time record against ULowell, but the Lady Chiefs were confident that they could win.

Once in CT., the Lady Chiefs, out of their dresses and skirts and into their uniforms, took over right from the start. Fifty-two percent shooting in the first half and some very strong defense helped the Lady Chiefs to a 35-26 lead at the break. The Lady

Chiefs fell to only 29 percent shooting in the second half, but with the Lady Owls hacking and almost scapling our Lady Chiefs, ULowell burned the Lady Owls to the stake at the foul line. ULowell hit 75 percent from the line in the second half. Jennifer Demby (the Lady Chief who never speaks to E.Z. when seen at Rosie's Market) was game-high scorer with 20 pts., 11 rebs., 4 blocked shots, and 2 steals in this impressive win over Southern Conn., 74-66. Missy Montini downed 18 pts. (1 three-point shot), 6 rebs., and 4 steals, Rosalyn Worsley popped in 12 pts., 6 rebs., and 2 steals. Montini also was assessed a technical foul, but E.Z. doesn't think Missy will be running any suicides, for Head Coach O'Neil also recieved a technical foul. Touch time with the refs in CT. ladies??!!

The Lady Chiefs are now 10-13. The last chance to see our Lady Chiefs in action at home is Friday, Feb. 26, against Keene State College in Costello Gym at 5:30, be there and cheer the Lady Chiefs on to victory!

LETTERS FROM THE FANS:

E.Z. has often been asked, "What ever happened to number 10 Nancy Thornton and the UHawaii transfer Donna Cananaugh number 14???" E.Z. does not know, but they are sadly missed by the fans!!

Chiefs win war of the Indians

By Chas Kelley

Jon Morris is concluding his spectacular college hockey career in a spectacular fashion. When the Chiefs played the Warriors of Merrimack College earlier in the season, Morris was in the middle of a scoring drought. This time, however, he nailed home two goals, one the eventual game winner, as the Chiefs posted a 6-5 come-from-behind win over the Warriors. Conrade Thomas added two goals as well for the Chiefs. Jeff Flaherty, racing with Craig Charron for the team lead in goals, added one and Brendan Flynn, who has been seeing plenty of action lately, added one as well.

As was the case in the previous meeting, Sunday night's game was a typical near-bloodbath. If and when the Warriors enter Hockey East, an extremely volatile rivalry will develop quickly. At one point, a Merrimack skater zoomed in on an unsuspecting Flaherty, who was near the boards. The unknown

Warrior delivered an incredibly hard check to the sophomore winger, so hard in fact that Flaherty was bleeding from the mouth. Naturally, a fight erupted from the incident, and both players were assessed with roughing penalties. But what peeved the ULowell fans the most was the fact that Flaherty was given an extra two minutes for unsportsmanlike conduct--when it was he who took the hit!

The Chiefs jumped out to a 3-0 lead with goals by Thomas, Flynn, and Flaherty. The Warriors came back in the late first period and entire second period with four goals of their own, matched only by Thomas' second goal, and at the end of two period the score was tied 4-4.

It was time for Morris to work his magic after Merrimack went ahead 5-4 in the third. His first goal tied the game up (obviously) and then he scored the game-winner. Final score: Chiefs-6, Warriors-5.

Women skiers end season

The Women's Ski Team completed the 1987-88 season over the weekend of February 13th at Burke Mtn. in East Burke, Vermont. In Saturday's slalom race the women came in fourth place, despite losing key racer Debbie Gray on the first run. On Sunday in the giant slalom, the women did considerably better as Paula Moriarty led the team with an individual 8th place finish--putting the team in third.

This year the women had more depth and strength than ever before in the team's history. Fortunately, all but graduating senior Debbie Gray will be back next season to take care of unfinished business. Watch out, Green Mtn., we'll getcha next time around! And Deb, it's still not too late to enroll in grad school!

Any women interested in skiing and being involved in a varsity sport--watch for future announcements and articles concerning the resumption of our dry-land training.

Chief Hoopsters return home

By Adam Hughes

The mens varsity team wound up their five game road series with a convincing win over the Southern Connecticut Owls last Saturday night in New Haven.

The Chiefs maintained control throughout the game, and when Bobby Licare sparked a rally for 13 unanswered points, early in the 2nd half, the Owls were left in the dark for good. It was also a game in which tri-captain Pat King, the senior forward from West Roxbury, scored his 1000th point as a Chief. Leo Parent led the Chiefs in scoring with 20, while Gavin Cummings added 14, Bobby Licare had 12, Brian Parath tossed in 11, and King finished with 10. This victory improves the team's record to 18-7 overall and 6-4 in the NECC.

This Friday night, the Chiefs conclude their regular season schedule at home against Keene State. Tip-off is at 7:30.

Male skiers take division

The ULowell men were a better team this year than ever before according to Coach Ameen. With over twelve strong skiers on the team the men won the Thompson Division at Burke Mountain in East Burke, Vermont on the weekend of Feb. 13. In Saturday's slalom the men took second place with several top fifteen individual finishes. On Sunday in the giant slalom the men cleaned up again, taking second once again. Bob Rogan took 8th place, Rick Slabinski 11th, and John Murphy 12th. This clinched the division win by six points for the men, and an invitation to the Eastern Regional Championships.

This past weekend at the Easterns held at Waterville Valley, the men competed in Friday's giant slalom race and placed 9th overall out of the 16 teams from the region participating. But Friday night the Friday champagne from the previous weekend went flat as the assistant coach unexpectedly and unnecessarily withdrew the team from competition because of a no-alcohol policy dispute with team members. The men never had the chance to carry themselves over to the Nationals.

Pre-Law Society

The Society is happy to announce our first field trip. We will be visiting the Boston College School of Law. We will be meeting with admissions to address questions that you may have. We will be touring the law school and talking to actual law school students about their legal education adventure. We will be sitting in on a Torts class and also touring the law school bookstore. We will be leaving at 8:15 a.m. from Olsen 229 (Prof. Adrusaitis Office) on Friday, February 26, 1988.

We urge all Legal Eagles and interested students to attend this field trip as you will benefit immensely from this experience. If you have any questions, please contact me Dan Ziegler, through my box #169, THANKS...

AFROTC

A career in the Air Force could mean anything from engineering to the Criminal Justice field. The Air Force has it all. That's why I plan on being part of it. I seem to get bored with having to do the same job all the time. Once I learn how to do something and do it right there is no excitement or challenge. As an Air Force officer I would be constantly experiencing new challenges.

The Air Force is a world of opportunity. Although many people see the Air Force as a purely military humdrum by the book lifestyle it really isn't. The Air Force has air bases all over the world. Each one of those bases has it's own special needs as well as common needs that it shares with the others. Those special needs could range from Security Police to Environmental Control Officers. With all these opportunities the Air Force has to offer I could spend my twenty years without ever repeating the same job twice.

I would like to spend the first four years in the Air Force as an agent for the Office of Special Investigation (OSI). The Office of Special Investigation is in itself made up of many types of careers, an agent for OSI could handle areas ranging from counter terrorist activities to drug investigation. In any other career field other than the military you most likely couldn't do such a large range of work. The commercial businesses are specialized too much and once you specialize its tough to change. The Air Force, however encourages it's officers to try different areas of interest.

All in all I feel that the Air Force has a lot to offer. There are enough career fields to produce the excitement and challenge of new experiences every day of the year.

What are you doing for the rest of your life?

Answers to questions like this are hard to come by.

If you have ever considered the possibility of priesthood,
1988 Awareness Days • March 17 - 18
will offer some answers.

Awareness Days is a program conducted annually at St. John's Seminary. It is designed to provide an opportunity for men, who are considering priesthood, to experience seminary community over a 24 hour period. There is no cost or obligation.

For additional information call or write Rev. Frank J. Silva

Fly with the finest.

Get your career off to a flying start. Become a Marine aviator. If you're a college freshman, sophomore or junior, you could qualify for our undergraduate Officer Commissioning Program and be guaranteed flight school after graduation. All training is conducted during the summer. There are no on-campus drills. Plus, you receive $100 a month during the school year.

Seniors can qualify for the graduate Officer Commissioning Program and attend training after graduation.

This is an excellent opportunity to prove yourself amongst the best and start off making from $17,000 to $23,000 a year. See if you measure up. Check out the Marine Corps Officer Commissioning Programs.

Marines
Maybe you can be one of us. The few. The proud. The Marines.

Personals

To all Personal Page Users: This is just a reminder that in order for your personal to be published, it must conform to the following specifications: 1) Typed; 2) On a 3x5 index card; 3) First and Last name and box number on back; 4) One personal per card; 5) In the Connector office by 5pm, Monday. The Typesetter

To a certain Chemistry major, (you know who you are!) If you don't tell us why you can't swirl in a beaker, we will hold Steve hostage and pluck all his chest hairs out, one by one. The Nursing Majors.

Kathy: Glad to see you've recovered from your stroke. Kim: Will you look at this! Kerry C. and Hope: He's from Denmark! Well, Czechoslovakia isn't that far off! All you guys Don't hate me because I'm beautiful! Love, The other Kerry

Nimue: I know I can be the biggest pain in the behind with all my problems and catastrophes from the "Kind", but I really want to thank you for your great listening ability and patience. Remember, I'll be here for you in the same situation or any other. "A truly greatful person!"

Tandem: Since you are the only one to have any response to my words of wisdom, you now have my full attention! All other plans have now dissolved: a new plan of attack is at hand. *Callopie*

Tandem: I am not hiding behind my words. I just like to get you to think about things. I am not confused about anything and I don't think I'm omnipotent. I do think you are bold but obviously have great concern for the feelings of others; I really like that in a person. I've asked around and you are pretty well known and liked. Maybe our paths will cross someday. *Callopie*

Notapuck: Hockey players No. 21 and 23 just don't have what it takes! If the women on campus are interested in some real men they should try to bump into No. 18 and 26! Now that's hot stuff! And need us not forget No. 8! And betwixt the three of them they can lick the platter clean. "A Hot and Bothered Hockey Puck"

Mark, Sean and Adam: So, who kissed who? It's O.K., we're easy or is it that you're easy? So "the bottle turns"... By the way, we're missing a "pearl necklace" but we found one of your "Hats". The Quarters Crew from the condos

Guinevere: "...And he talks to the river of lost love and dedication. And silent replies that swirl invitation flow dark and troubled to an oily sea, a grim intimation of what is to be. There's an unceasing wind that blows through this night. And there's dust in my eyes, that blinds my sight and silence that speaks so much louder than words, of promises broken." Things get better. Trained Observer

Trained Observer: Well said (Who actually said it?). The Typesetter

Lady in Waiting: You missed a great hockey game Saturday night. Finland looked really fine! Too bad he didn't score! That's life in the exciting world of hockey. Hopefully next time he'll do better. Love, Fairygodmother

Question: What do you call a guy who strikes out with a naked woman in a hot tub? Answer: Burnsie!

Callopie: "Men always project their beliefs and their emotions into their vision of the world. Machines can be made to see in a wider spectrum, to detect every wave length precisely as it is, undistorted by love or hate or awe. But still men's eyes see more than lenses do." Why did you give me that particular personal? Was it because I liked it or did you see something else? Trained Observer

Amy K: This is a personal for you in case you've ever wanted one. Is this better than the mail box? Are you paying attention? --The Imposter

Mercaenaris or Wannaabe's, Adventurers or Militants: Do you hold a grudge/ Care to travel to interesting and domestic lands, meet exotic and exciting people to shoot them? Dear Eames 414, We're all wicked sorry about any dorm destruction (the hat). Next time we'll be on our best behavior - promise. S.S.A.

Hugs: The time I spend talking with you would either surpass the national debt or put Dear Abby out of business forever. A word of advice - having faith is more important than believing in what is too hard to believe in. Kisses

Peg, Next time your roommate goes away for the weekend, you bet I'll take you up on your offer. 1 of the SSA

Alvin, Elway, Mo, Peg & Bubbles: 1:00am football - great game, O--O Next time you better be ready to really party! Saugus Sack Attack

Bubbles: Where'd ya go Sat. Night? Our football captain deserted us drinking desperados! Saugus Sack Attack

Cinderella: Before semester break you wrote such a cute personal, why haven't we heard from you lately? Are you afraid of your slipper becoming too loose and falling off. Come one, put up a fight. "Fairygodmother" and "The Lady in Waiting"

Arrrrghhhhhh!

Burnsie: Let it be known that I cannot be held responsible for personals which do not bear my name. If I see fit to lash out at your lack of manhood or your lack of hair, you'll be sure to know that it's a product of my wit. But being the nice, honest guy that I am, I would never say such nasty things. And if you think that I'm going to tell you who wrote that "hot tub" personal, my lips are sealed. (Isn't that right, Ed?) -The Tor-mentor

The Punster: I hate to burst your bubble, but not only are you highly unoriginal, but you are also incredibly late...dictionary excerpts have been tired long ago. But what amazes me is that you insisted on not one, but two personals which were virtually identical, thus proving yourself twice as redundant. It's true that the pun is the lowest form of humor, but I'm disappointed to see that your low self esteem brings you to the point of plagiarism. --The Tor-mentor

Mo, Eric is sorry....we think. But, you can help us scrape him off the hall floor. S.S.A.

Tim, Mogule, Binding. Bev

Col: Guess what, I didn't need my own mattress! Four feet in the showers allowed, no bare feet. By the way, I heard that "Drakkar Noir" on beautiful men does funky things to your body!!! *4798* Geri

Mark Martel: Happy be-lated 23rd Birthday. Love, Jen

To My Roommate: We had better start talking in depth so we can win the Roommate Game!!! Your Roommie

Jungle Bunnie: Me again. You were in rare form after the semi-formal. Wish I could see why you had such a smile on your face. Was it a very eventful evening??? My scoops have remained within the three guys all semester, what have yours done? Why don't you tell everyone what you have to offer??? That may help you scoop a little more. Don't you need all the help you can get? Talk to you next week, by then I should have more dirt. -The Resistor

B.C.I.E.: Sitting in our room last Saturday night when Ann came in with a fright. "Where's B.C.?" she yelled with a look of death in her eyes. Images flowed through our minds. Could B.C. again be bouncing down the stairs like a slinky on a never ending hell ride? Hotwheels and Bob

B.C.I.E.: How will Ann break the news to Sue and Michele? Imagine their mourning and sorrow for their lost little B.C. To arms, to arms! May the search begin! Check the rooms, the stairs, the hamsters on the third floor. As the search went on, the pressure mounted. Then at last word came down. B.C. was safe. But Ann said, "Don't tell Yulanda where we found him." Hotwheels and Bob P.S. SAM & B.C.I.E. & Ann

B.C.I.E.: Another thought passed our minds. Might he have been hamster-napped for a ransom? Oh the price they will ask, but is B.C. worth more than the Gunds? Or could Mittens have gotten him, that fresh little feline? Even worse he might have ended up like Mittens with people operating their worse fantasy on him. What if he made his break, on the lam - free at last to try out all his sexual fantasies? Hotwheels and Bob

Soup (S416): Soup, Soup, who got me the Super Scoop. Dreams do come true when friends come through! I'm forever in your debt. Luey. P.S. Glad to see you're still alive!!!

Pukin' Dog: Have a happy Birthday, aren't you glad you got your first personal. Ann and Paula

This is not a good sign....

Scott or is it Andrew? Inbetween batches we decided to wish you a happy birthday, you hotta babel! From the people that know you have a complex

SA-- Thanx for the personal! It's not quite the same over here without you, but of course you know that! I miss ya! Love, Your Twin

NoMuTT: What exactly was I trying to say to you Thursday? Did I even have a point? I am also forever grateful for you saving me from that thing who wouldn't let me go. I thought I was dead. Annette

Annette - You mean you didn't enjoy having your neck attacked by a vacuum cleaner? My, my, I don't know what to say. NoMuTT P.S. You're welcome, it was no problem.

Resistor, What has my love for ice cream have to do with what we write about in the personals? I hope you are not too bummed about having to stay in last Thursday night. But how come you didn't get your paper done? Where you preoccupied? Couldn't have been that person in your room all night? Jungle Bunny

To Fredie Krooger: You shouldn't be so afraid of elevators...or write on strange girls' memoboads! Love Ya!! Skye

I've come to the conclusion that pepperoni pizza farts smell the worst

Above: You obviously have yet to sample the odor of Guinness Extra Stout. The Typesetter

Bed Spring (aka Half Pint)- The 501's look real good but they're kind hard to un-botton. Did you ever get to the bank? -I'll never tell

Hey Kimmy-- Why do you go to so many hockey games? It couldn't be just to see the "....." play hangman lately? How is... whoever it is this week? Are you sick? So you have mono and have to go to the health center? I'll make y our appointment. CCCCCC-ya. Jo

Hey, You Guys!!!!

To NoMuTT: I don't think it was you who helped move my roommate's car (mine was in Fox, Not Eames). But I'm sure the girls you helped appreciated it. Thanks anyway. P.S. And to the guy who did help me in Fox - Thanks again

Jeffrey: I really do love you a whole bunch! I'm sorry I'm such a witch sometimes. I love you. Jo

To the Blonde chic in Concordia: Life just isn't the same without you. Come up and visit (Tigger misses you). Give my love to Henrietta and Bowie (Tigger misses them too). Love, The blonde enough chic in Fox

Kellie: What exactly did happen this weekend? Who was that man wearing my bathrobe? was it worth it? A Concerned Roommate

To Ken and the rest of the "Itzapizza" crew. Thanks for all of the hard work you put into our party. We appreciated it. Signed: 11th Floor

NoMuTT, You said that no one can touch you. Who would want to? Disinterested I want two Critturs!!!! in a big way!!

o Gary in Leitch 323: What happened to my dancing lesson? Tracey in Fox 1115

To Mike "the flower man" on 14.... Why didn't you stop by like you promised you would. Does this mean you don't want my body anymore??? (wink). Jo

Belly Dancing, The Pub, Channel 2, It's all yours for only 19.95

Dev., Inc: From now on Grim Reader, I will only correspond with you. By the way, was I right - your identity?? -Star

Hammer: First of all, I do not appreciate the threat of you hunting me down and terminating me. Second, you don't even know me and can't find me. I like the Grim Reader's style - is that a problem? -Star

Star: So much for corresponding only with The Grim Reader.... The Typesetter

Life Force - You guys are defunct, outside of Dr. Fate (and that's pretty sad). PIZ-ZAHuTT is completely uninvolved, Sludge is majorly unconcerned, Firewalker is missing, Shark has been killed, and Dr. Fate is just plain lame. Remain Life Force for as long as you want, but don't tell us what power you possess. -The Anthony Bros

Dr. Fate -- For your information, last week Devestation, Inc. was spending you time elsewhere. The Anthony Bros were invading the Bahamas, The Hammer was "unmaking" Jamaica, and m. grappler was wreaking havoc in Aruba. I, myself, was receiving an apprentice on Venus. You will meet him this week. You are about to meet your maker! The Grim Reader

C208 - You can see the sink! Congratulations on getting your act together. C Resident

Thursday March 2nd: RHA sponsors Kenmore Square trip. 2 buses leave Fox hall at 7:00pm and leave Kenmore Square at 1:00am. Seats are only $1 and on a first come first serve basis

To the Men with no pants: The show last Thursday was interesting, but I think a private showing would be a lot more fun!! For the only one with pants.

Above: Sounds as if you missed out on the fun. The Typesetter

Joe S.: Nachos off the floor of Seven Eleven sounds pretty disgusting to me!! How could you??

Laurie: "Hi! Welcome to the Magic Kingdom! I'll be y our tour guide for your visit, so if you have any questions..." Sounds good to me, Laurie! Let's do it!!! To hell with grad school!! Diane

Scott: Looking forward to spending our birthdays together this weekend! The Omni, Pizzaria Uno and Biloxi Blues - will the fun ever stop? From the girl whose birthday is the day before yours (or is it the day after?!! You tell me!!)

Paul -- It was great while it lasted, and I never dreamed I'd see the day when it would end. But I have to believe that this is for the best. We can still be best friends, though, can't we? I'll always have a soft spot in my heart for you, and the fondest memories of our time together. --Just a number

Mark --Payback is a bitch!!! Janine

To the Guys with no pants on Leitch 3: Oh, I suppose you think that was a thrill for me, right? I think perhaps if we all kept things where they belonged. Like in our pants, we would get ourselves into a lot less trouble. Right boys?? The one with pants

To Tricia: If you think the first John was romantic, you should try the one I have now. Love, Me

Brenda and John: Ten whole months? Wow! I don't know how you did it. Happy tenth monthiversary! Killer Kid

AI-- of course you'll still get spoiled, you didn't think I'd forget to take care of you already, did you?? Love, Me

To the best thing that ever happened to me: Yes, you Odief Hope you have a very happy birthday!! I love you and don't forget to add what I promised you to the list of what I owe you!! You'll get paid back someday!! From the best thing that ever happened to you!!

Flasher - Make sure you don't flash anything tomorrow night, because you are very special to me and we don't want you picking up anything you don't want!! Ha ha ha. Your innocent (still) Minnie

To my Bodyguard, Happy Anniversary babe! I'm glad that you asked me last year and I'm glad I said yes! Thank you for being supportive. Yours always, The Dreamer

Schultz, You're the best little a big could have! I can't wait till our family date! Tau love, Roo

Mander, Let's work at it. Okay? We'll all make it! Can't wait for our family date! Tau Love, your little

To Brenda Crossen: A ten month attraction, a lifetime of love. What more can I say? I love you, now and always. John

To Rich Harrington: I know it's tough, but it's time to let go. Nobody wants to see you hurt. An unlikely friend

David Lucier: Gott in Himmel!!! Another diphthong bites the dust!!

To my ex: How many more of my good friends are you going to take into the shower? A friend

The Typesetter -- You didn't like the chip monk?!! I thought it was kinda cute. Oh well, back to the old drawing (?) board, I guess --The Punster

The Typesetter -- Can I ask you a silly question? What did I ask you? I can't seem to remember much about that. -- The Punster

Dr. Victor Von Doom - I have been brought from beyond the spheres by the Grim One. He has told me that you scoff at the destinies of mortals. He has taught me all about you, your strengths and your weaknesses. I shall conquer and destroy you. -The Necromancer

Spell throwers are nothing save glorified stage magicians beside the arcane and technical might which is Doom's alone to possess. Go back to your master for more tutelage, for only the most foolish of apprentices would speak thus to those who are their betters. Doom

Typesetter - From a distant galactic dimension I venture laying waste to all in my path. I have come to do battle with Dr. Victor Von Doom, the immortal! For I, also, am immortal. I will have no interferences from you or any other. Heed this warning! -The Necromancer

The Necromancer: First, I request the I be addressed in a like fashion (The Typesetter) and Second, remember that you will doing battle in my realm; I will allow the battle to go on, as it is of no consequence to me. Keep in mind at all times, that I alone control the battles. The Typesetter

Hi Stretch, I enjoyed playing questions with you at DK. When can I hear the answers? Well, I never... P.S. You still owe me a beer. From Mary's Former Taxi Service

To those who played "I Never last Thursday night. God, there sure isn't a lot that you people haven't done. I am truly shocked. The Rule Maker

Beast -- I believe that m. grappler embarrassed you plenty the first time. Why don't you hide your wretched limp body someplace out of the way so I don't trip on you? Otherwise, you could suffer the same fate as Shark and Thingfish. -The Hammer

John?! Is that John!!! I know it is!! (Giselle has to tell me that I'm not going) Love, Half the Shop

Evil Scum: On the personals page, as in 1984 someone is watching "over" you still. Leave this page in peace. Best wishes to Devistation, Inc. -???????

Devistation, Inc.: It has come to my attention that we do have a few mutual enemies to deal with. We could deal them and even more "devistating" blow, I think, if we were to join in alliance. Think it over. -Jokester

Jokester: I think that it shows a lack of will and character. The Typesetter

To Chas, the love of my life and the sports editor. From your assistant

Assistant: And how do you assist the sports editor? Does it involve the Meese Commission's list of banned literature? The Typesetter

On Friday, February 6, I lost a mug in FA 206. It is blue with horses on it. If anyone found it, please return it to box 5160. I mean, it's only a mug and it means a lot to me.

Bob, Thanks for the carnation, it really made my day!! Thanks again, Valane

Liz Sango, you seem to be getting used to our craziness; well there's more to come. Love, Maxine, Lisa, Barbara, and Diane

Howard Holley: Sweetheart, don't you wish people would stay out of your business? I know I do. Love, Lisa

Wanted: a real RA for Bogus 2. One who doesn't look like a chicken

Dave in 241: Get a real major, a real life and a real haircut and leave
